

The Dullards Club For Men

Official Charter

The Dullards Club for Men was conceived and created as a safe space where we nurture the mundane and celebrate the monotony of every day life ... lived by those of us whose outlook and interests are just as dull today as they will be tomorrow. We find comfort in minutia that would be too obscure or uninteresting to most others to pay attention to it. Especially those who are busy living a normal life.

So, The Dullards Club is a community of like-minded souls who have joined a club that simply doesn't do very much.

On the subject of women, the question arises: why would a woman want to join The Dullards Club for Men? This question comes up more often than you might think. Of course, women are invited and encouraged to join, and we welcome them as full members of the Dullards Club for Men Women's Auxiliary.

The simple fact is that we probably should have given a little more thought to the club name before settling on it. Then, before we knew it, certificates had been designed, place mats and matchbooks printed (you know how it goes). So, to make a long story short, we thought we might as well just go with it and see what happens.

Membership is strictly limited to the number of people interested in joining. If you are considered (If you consider yourself?) drab, tedious, unexciting, just plain boring or all of the above, you're invited to join this somewhat stationary movement and become a member of The Dullards Club for Men.

To become a member, submit your application to: Boring@DullardsClub.com. You'll receive one of those aforementioned certificates to mount on the wall of your choice and the awareness of your existence by our "Bored of Directors". If you don't hear back, it may be because you are just too interesting.

Art Farnsworth

Vice-Chancellor of the Exchequer

(Apparently, there is a lot of Vice within the Exchequary, hence the need for a Chancellor of it.)
